WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The "All Out" British aid program embraced in President Roosevelt's "Lend-Lease" bill probably will entail expenditure of $7,000,000,000, a high administration source disclosed today.

While frankly saying that an exact estimate is impossible, the cost depending upon war trends, this administration leader added that "the figure I've heard discussed is $7,000,000,000."

Members of the house foreign affairs committee, now holding hearings on the "lend-lease" bill, thus far have sought vainly to obtain an estimate of the amount of money involved in the measure.

Knudsen To Testify
The effort was to be renewed today as William S. Knudsen, arms production chief, was scheduled to take the witness stand in support of the measure.

One of the immediate objectives of the program, Secretary of the Navy Knox revealed, is standardization of British and American fighting equipment. Already, he said, progress has been made in standardizing torpedoes, guns and similar defense articles.

Chairman Bloom (D-N.Y.) of the foreign affairs committee called the extraordinary hearing today to speed the "lend-lease" bill. He said that he would be forced to adjourn over inauguration day.

Swansea Is Center Of Latest German Attack By Bombers

LONDON, Jan. 18.—Attacking in waves and returning repeatedly to drop first fire bombs and then high explosives, German raiders last night and early today heavily pounded the South Wales town of Swansea, causing an unspecified number of casualties.

A few minutes before noon today British authorities permitted revelation that Swansea was the main target of the German air force last night.

Swansea is situated northwest of the important Welsh port of Cardiff at the mouth of the Bristol channel and is used as a port by ocean-going vessels.

Heavy Attack
The attack, which was heavy throughout, lasted several hours. When the raid began soon after dark the German planes flew overhead in continuous waves despite heavy anti-aircraft fire. After unloading their incendiary bombs they returned many times to drop heavy explosives, hitting several stores, a school, a church and a motion picture theatre.

One bomb scored a direct hit on a public building while a second missile dug a huge crater outside another.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—A secret plan to mobilize British man-power even more fully for an "all-out" war effort came to light today following Prime Minister Winston Churchill's declaration at Glasgow that Britain needs more ships, guns and planes—but not men—from the United States in 1941.

It was learned that Labor Minister Ernest Bevin last night completed the draft of a secret plan to use the government's compulsory powers over the man-power of the nation. The program will be submitted to Churchill later today.

The country doctor from Callendar, Ontario, visiting Pennsylvania's capital to deliver an address at the annual convention of the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers Association, disclosed that "the best job of my career was back in 1918 during the flu epidemic."

LONDON, Jan. 18.—Smashing through snowy weather and intense cold that produced dangerous icing conditions, R.A.F. bombers attacked the "invasion ports" of Cherbourg and Brest and bombed two German airdromes in occupied France during the night, it was revealed today.

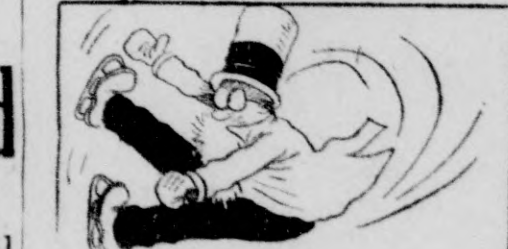

Yesterday afternoon, it was disclosed, bombers of the British coastal command successfully attacked enemy shipping off the Dutch coast.

Last night operations were greatly restricted by the weather, in comparison with the previous terrific attacks on Wilhelmshaven and other German bases.

Nevertheless, targets at Brest and Cherbourg on the French coast were bombed as well as the airdromes further inland.

CAIRO, Jan. 18.—A new series of Royal Air Force attacks on Derna, Bomba and Bengazi was announced today as British mechanized troops tightened their stranglehold on the Italian garrison in the beleaguered Libyan base of Tobruk.

Fires Started
Many fires were started in Derna's port establishments, British officials said.

Other British raiders hammered Italian airdromes as the high command followed up its policy of blasting Italian planes at their bases on the ground. The entire Libyan coastal area was searched from end to end for possible new Fascist air-dromes.

Latest military advices to Cairo said the British forces at Tobruk were steadily drawing their net closer around the estimated 25,000 Italian troops.

Continue Hunt For Army Bomber

Mountain Areas Being Searched

Report Received Of Crash Being Heard Near Bonneville, Oregon

SEVEN MEN ON MISSING PLANE

(International News Service)
McCHORD FIELD, Wash., Jan. 18.—Search for the army bomber which vanished Thursday, with seven men aboard, today centered principally along the blizzard-lashed mountains of southwestern Washington and northwestern Oregon. At the same time, military and commercial airships kept sharp lookout along the entire coast flight route.

The Cascade and Siskiyou ranges were scoured because of reports from scattered areas that a big plane, apparently in trouble, was seen there several hours after the missing B-18A Douglas bomber took off from McChord Field, near Tacoma, for the Muroc lake bombing range in southern California.

Crash heard also received a report by a WPA road crew near Bonneville, Ore., that a terrific crash was heard near there about 11 o'clock Thursday morning. A CCC crew was ordered into the wild area at dawn today and planes from Pearson Field, near Vancouver, Wash., were to follow if visibility improves.

Col. William M. Cron, commanding officer at McChord Field, expressed hope that the seven men might still be alive. He said the bomber's retractable landing gear might have enabled the ship to make a belly landing on a snow-packed field or mountain side.

Col. Cron said he was inclined to discount the reports from northern California that the plane had crashed in the Siskiyou.

Poor Visibility
Yesterday morning plans crisscrossed and circled the Mount St. Helens area of southwestern Washington but poor visibility, high winds and low ceilings soon forced the observers back to McChord and Pearson fields.

Aboard the huge, all-metal bomber were First Lieut. R. M. Krummes, chief pilot; Second Lieut. C. T. Nielsen, co-pilot; Second Lieut. J. F. Geis, navigator; First Lieut. L. E. Mackay, passenger; Sgt. H. A. Davis, technical engineer; L. H. Neil, bomb operator, and P. L. Maas, bombardier.

SWANSEA IS CENTER OF LATEST GERMAN ATTACK BY BOMBERS

bombard but not so heavily as the South Wales region.

Rescue Squads At Work

This morning rescue squads were laboring among tangled girders and masonry to reach victims trapped under debris blasted when a stick of high explosives crashed into houses and shops in a southwestern English town just after midnight. A woman and two babies were killed.

Another town on the south coast suffered a prolonged attack that lasted most of the night. Explosive bombs caused minor casualties. A number of incendiaries also fell on this town.

Two bombs fell on the London area as the capital experienced its 442nd alarm of the war. They damaged a public house and a motion picture theatre and blasted the windows from a block of apartments, but failed to cause any casualties.

The all-clear signal sounded in London at 4 a. m.

It was believed the Nazi raid on Swansea was greatly reduced by R.A.F. night fighter planes which constantly patrolled western country areas, breaking up and harassing large formations of German bombers.

Nevertheless, hundreds of raiders participated in the Swansea attack.

STIMSON-KNOX SEE CRISIS NEAR IN WAR

Knox voicing fear of a crisis in 60 to 90 days, the committee was under heavy pressure from administration leaders to rush the bill so that the program of giving more aid to Great Britain can get under way.

Knudsen was to complete the testimony of the administration "big five" witnesses, which included Secretary of State Hull, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, Stimson and Knox.

Others Scheduled To Testify

Republican Leader Wendell L. Willkie, former Ambassador Joseph Kennedy and William Bullitt and Col. Charles Lindbergh were among the luminaries scheduled to testify.

Willkie, however, said he would know today whether he can appear before the committee Tuesday prior to his departure for Europe on Wednesday. Bloom hoped to complete hearings next week, and get the bill to the floor soon after.

Meantime, Senator George (D.) Georgia, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, said that he will start hearing next week, avoid duplication of testimony and proceed "with all possible dispatch."

Unexpectedly stubborn opposition from Republicans and a flood of protesting letters from people throughout the country to members of congress may, however, slow up the administration drive. Administration leaders are expected to "take to the air" in an effort to rouse support throughout the nation.

The committee had before it today Secretary Knox's opinion, based upon military advice, of the probable outcome of the war.

Declaring that it is necessary for British forces to invade the continent, he declared that once Hitler's invasion of the British Isles has failed, Britain gains mastery of the air and rains bombs on German cities the German people will "crack" and the Hitler regime will fall.

The predictions of Stimson and Knox of an impending 60 to 90-day crisis, which was unexplained, was believed to be based upon the probability of a German invasion of Ireland.

been killed, captured or wounded since the Italian-Greek conflict began.

Today's high command communiqué gave a succinct report of the latest Hellenic advances in Albania. It said:

Colonel Captured
"During successful operations we occupied fortified positions and took a thousand prisoners and many officers, including Colonel Menegetti, commanding the 77th regiment of the Seventh Division of the Wolves of Tuscany, who recently disembarked in Albania."

Greek authorities also stated that a battle was still raging on the Klisura-Tepeleni battle sector despite a heavy blizzard and that the Greeks stormed and captured an important mountain peak.

They said that Italian troop reinforcements and supplies were being rushed to the front aboard huge airplanes in a desperate attempt to stem the Hellenic drive.

Transport Sunk
According to the Athens radio, the Italian transports sent to the bottom by Greek torpedoes were the Lombardia and Giguria. They were intercepted while making a dash from Brindisi to Albania—both crowded with troop reinforcements.

Thousands of the Italian soldiers aboard the vessels were rescued and captured. Many of them were members of the Wolves of Tuscany Division of the Black Shift forces, the unit to which Colonel Menegetti was attached.

"Editor's note: Lloyd's register of shipping lists the Lombardia as a liner of 26,000 tons but does not mention the Giguria, which may be a new Italian vessel or a renamed liner converted for use as a transport."

Meanwhile, Greek columns were reported still advancing gradually against the Italian-held port of Valona on the Albanian coast, and the stronghold of Tepeleni, Berat and Elbasan inland.

Bad weather—wet snow and torrential rains—were reported slowing down Greek progress, however, and were proving more of a barrier than Italian resistance, it was stated.

Air Raid Sirens Sound In London During Daytime

(International News Service)

LONDON, Jan. 18.—After delivering a smashing night attack on the south Wales town of Swansea, German bombers carried out daylight attacks today on scattered points in the British Isles.

Air raid sirens sounded in London shortly after 3:30 p. m. (9:30 a. m. EST), marking the first time in many days that an alert has been in progress in the daylight hours.

The sudden crashing of anti-aircraft batteries startled thousands of Londoners, who have come to generally regard the morning and afternoon raids as free from attack.

It was believed, however, that the alarm was caused by single Nazi planes, making reconnaissance flights over the British capital.

Denies Great Britain Seeking To Persuade U. S. To Declare War

Churchill in Glasgow last night that England will not need "large armies from overseas" in 1941, Britain actually wants American pilots to man airplanes, and sailors for ships this year.

Of course if there is any question about American boys being plowed under by Mr. Roosevelt's war dictatorship bill, passed Mr. Churchill's statement ought to settle it," Wheeler declared.

"The next step will be an expeditionary force. Every American ought to realize that Mr. Roosevelt is leading us down the road to war, not step by step, but leap by leap and if this dictatorship bill passes it won't be long before we will be asked for a declaration of war."

Dr. Dafoe ascribed his success with the Dionne quintuplets as "due largely to the fact that for so many years I had been accustomed to depending upon myself. I had to, because there was on one else on whom to depend."

In those early pre-quent days, he recalled with a laugh, he received five dollars for a confinement case—"If I was lucky enough to collect my fee."

tend sessions of the state farm show. Many exhibits from the county are listed in the competition for prizes.

New Castle firemen will attend the annual memorial service on Sunday evening. The program will be presented at the Central Presbyterian church on the public square.

The recent cold snap seems to have loosened up the coating of coarse sand which was applied to the top dressing given North Jefferson street and Wilmington avenue, when the street was repaved last summer. An accumulation of such material can be noticed near the gutter on either side of the street.

There are no changes in the Detroit Bulletin issued for the period ending January 31 by the Pennsylvania Highway Department. The bulletin is kept posted in the lobby of The News for the benefit of motorists.

To vary things a bit, members of Pro Indus club, group of young business and professional men of New Castle, will meet this week for the "honor" of telling "the biggest and best tall story"—and all those present agreed the program was a good bit different! At least there were no dull moments, and everyone was astonished at the towering tales that came out.

Kiwanis club members, from now on, will practice democracy from a menu-making standpoint, with The Castleton kitchen force co-operating with members who turn in worthwhile suggestions for its Wednesday luncheons. It's something new, but it's going to be tried.

Dan Gibson, of Worthing avenue, R. D. 3, has advanced an idea to the war department which would utilize a new type of bomb against enemy bombing planes. Mr. Gibson would have small bombs of one to two pounds, manufactured and placed in racks under the bombing plane. Climbing above enemy bomb formations these small bombs could be dropped on the attack planes with a greater possibility of hits than entrusting the defense to large bombs or machine guns mounted on pursuit planes, he says.

WOMAN'S CLUB TO HEAR NOTED SPEAKER MONDAY

Sudden ascendancy to fame and the plaudits of public approval thru the power of the pen and on the lecture platform are distinguishing qualifications of Cornelia Stratton Parker, guest day speaker of the Woman's club meeting Monday, January 20, at 2:30 p. m. in the Highland U. P. church. As contributor to the Atlantic Monthly and writer of such books as "An American Idyll", "Wanderer's Circle", "German Summer" and "English Summer", she has been widely read.

Forced into a career, Mrs. Parker first delved into the theories of economics and sociology at N. Y. School of Social Research. Later she tested their practical application by working in five factories and in a large New York hotel, studying industrial relations and an evolving social order.

Travel through many foreign countries, continuous living abroad with her three growing children and her return to settle on a 200 year old New England farm near a college community have given Mrs. Parker an awareness of the problems, political, economic and social, which face the reformer and puzzle the mold of young character.

"Fashion in Morals" is her timely topic which seeks to solve the problem of worrying, bewildered parents concerning the younger generation.

A musical program by three of New Castle's finest musicians will be offered by the music division of the Department of Fine Arts. Mrs. Helen Urmon Felch, one of the city's most pleasing and ablest soloists, will sing a group of melodies. Anthony Casboro, violinist, will also perform as he began his career of distinction as a winner of the New Castle Music club award while still in high school. Honors have come to him at the Chicago Musical college and the Pittsburgh Music Institute. He has appeared with the Youngstown Symphony orchestra in concert. Both artists will be accompanied by Edwin Lewis.

Hostesses for guest day are Mrs. Earl McKissock and Mrs. Don Wilson.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

DOES "ONLY CHILD" FACE HANDICAP?

"Dear Dr. Myers: What advice can you give on the most desirable size of a family when the parents have good heredity but not much money? Would it be better to have an only child and give him all the advantages or to have several children?"

"I have seen so much about the jealousy of the older child for the little brother or sister—I wonder if maybe the only-child isn't better off after all."

The average parent, feeling unduly the need of keeping up with the Joneses, tends to doubt, to exaggerate the so-called advantages of life. I can see that some of my readers also have been unduly worried over jealousy in the order of two children.

Only-Child Sensitive

We should remember that the only-child does not escape jealousies. The chances are, indeed, that he suffers more from jealousy in some form than if he had a brother or sister. He is so accustomed to having the sole affection of his parents, that he becomes more sensitive to their affection for each other, and to any attention they give to other children.

As the only child competes on the playground and at school, he easily may suffer from great jealousy toward the child who approaches or excels his skills and achievements. All else being equal, the only child will be more sensitive to inevitable comparisons outside the family.

As for quarreling, the only child usually does not have so much practice at adjusting himself to others as the child with brothers or sisters. You would have no doubt if we matched 25 only-children with 25 children who have brothers and sisters, the former would include the more children who are quarrelsome. Some high school teachers have told me that they can easily pick out the "only" children in the classroom.

Several Children Better

Let us parents with one child choose to keep him, the only child with the hope of avoiding problems of jealousies and quarrels.

And let us add that, with all other things equal, parents gain more in character and personality values themselves from rearing several children than from rearing one. They have less opportunity to think of themselves and more occasion to think about, work for, and sacrifice for others. But let me add also that some only-children and their parents find compensations which render their family values equal to or even superior to those of some others of large families. There are many exceptions.

Would you like a selected list of books on personality problems and mental health? Then write me in care of this paper enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Solving Parent Problems

Q Please suggest a good way to help a poor speller eight years old.

A Have the child's vision and hearing checked by a specialist. See that he knows clearly every letter of the alphabet. Practice him on short easy words which sound alike as pat, mat, rat; hill, mill, bill. No matter how long his spelling assignment, prevail on him to attack only two or three words at a sitting.

Have him look carefully at the word, name the letters in order slowly, pronounce it again and spell it slowly while still looking at it, and repeat this process several times before trying to spell it while looking away. The main things are to help the child feel calm, not to try to spell the word before he knows it and never to spell a word wrong, if at all possible. When the child asks you how to spell a word while he is writing, cheerfully spell it for him.

The World and the Mud Puddles

BETTER GO SLOW

A large number of companies have been attracting attention to their service by advertising that they will hold open the jobs of men in their service who are drafted for the army. Others have gone so far as to announce that they will make up part or all of the difference between what the conscripts have been earning and their pay as soldiers.

On the face of it, this seems like a fine patriotic gesture, but it's one of those things that will bear a rather close examination. Ignoring the publicity value that action, it seems well to consider the meaning of the implied precedent. It goes without saying that if large numbers of men are called to the colors the great body of employers could not afford to pay bonuses to any considerable number of them except at the cost of reducing the wages of those who remain at work. Holding jobs for soldiers may be attempted. But making a definite promise to that effect is something else.

These are dangerous and unpredictable times. If war comes no one can say how long men will be in the service. The Thirty Years War of the seventeenth century or the intermittent twenty years of the Napoleonic struggle may be far better guides to the duration of the present conflict than 1914-18. Who can foresee the dislocations that war on this titanic scale may bring to business? But why so jittery concerning the situation?

HINTS AND DINTS

Sun sets tonight 5:01. Sun rises tomorrow 7:13.

There is an ordinance in New Castle that provides for a penalty for not removing snow and ice from sidewalks. That ordinance should be enforced.

In Washington some of the Democrats think they are not getting enough applause at times. Whoever thought any political party would ever expect applause from a rival party?

About the only time a lot of people know anything about taxes is when they are asked to pay them. Some of the taxes are never heard of before by many.

Office Grouch: "What's become of the old fashioned chap who boasted he could steer his car with his little finger? Haven't you heard? An ambulance driver, using both hands when at the wheel, gathered him up for the undertaker."

Mrs. Hum says: "One of the hard things in life is that there ain't no way that we can keep them we love from havin' grief and trouble. If there was we'd all be takin' it."

There's no enjoyment in unemployment.

"That kid of mine is going great guns in school," remarked a rather illiterate chap to a friend.

"What's he studying?"

"He's studying on French, Spanish, English and algebra right now," said the father, proudly. "Donald, say a few words to Mr. Smith in algebra."

Because of heavy traffic our Sundays are pretty noisy. But we can remember when a pair of church shoes squeaked louder than a purring motor.

Away back in the old days coffee drinking was considered a serious vice, even more than drinking liquor is now. Customs don't often change for the better.

While we are discussing matters feminine there is that little story about Doris Dazzle's meeting with a very handsome young man.

"I'm glad to meet you, Miss Dazzle," said the handsome youth. "Aren't you the little girl who used to shrink from my embrace?"

Doris dimpled.

"I don't recoil at the moment," she blushed.

Another thing we need is a dictionary in which you can look up the pronunciation of a word when you don't know how to spell it.

Probably lying is natural in time of war. Even then it can be overdone.

You may have noticed a little bit that when the days get longer the cold gets stronger.

Turning the other cheek may be good religion in the peaceful walks of life, though not a means to salvation on the battle front.

Secretary: "Sorry I was late, Mr. Doodle. I'll be here bright and early tomorrow morning."

Boss: "Don't promise the impossible—just be here early."

There are people who think the local paper does not print all the news. Some of it not printed would give the police a lot of tips.

SILENCE

A stranger entered a little Scotch church. Being hard of hearing, he seated himself in a front pew and placed his ear trumpet on his knee.

An elder of the kirk, who had never seen an ear trumpet, watched with grave suspicion.

When the minister entered, the man lifted the trumpet from his knee, but before he could adjust it he felt a tap on his shoulder and heard the suspicious elder say:

"One foot from that thing and out ye go."

Some years ago the gals had to remove their hats in theatres. That same rule should be enforced now. Many people do not go to the theatres now because they cannot see the picture for hats.

Good Taste

By W. A. Patent Office

Whenever a certain man I know is out among our friends, he seems bored and never enters into the conversation or spirit of the party. Yet when I introduce him to my friends, separately, he is cheerful and makes himself popular. I know that he wants to be sociable and well-liked and that he has the qualities for making himself so. Can you suggest anything that will arouse him?—Isabella.

Answer: If he is really worthwhile, analyze the crowd into which you take him and determine whether it is below or above his level. If you determine that he is a social misfit and that your crowd means more to you than he does, alone, find another cavalier. If you really wish to hang onto him but discover that he does not fit into your circle of friends—change your circle of friends and content yourself to go it alone with him until you do gather mutually congenial friends about you.

To find my symptoms suggest that he finds your crowd uninteresting. Perhaps, it includes a number of aggressive show-offs who irritate him or stifle his natural exuberance.

If he is suffering from bashfulness, or any other phase of the inferiority complex talk to him about himself, praise his really superior qualities, ask him about his ambitions, ideals, his favorite actors, actresses, authors, radio stars. When others are around, "bring him out" by directing the conversation toward him—asking him to repeat something clever or interesting that he has told you.

Question: My daughter, aged 15, just returned from a week-end visit to the home of a school chum. Just what should be done to show her appreciation to her chum's family—Laura J.

Answer: Your daughter should write a "bread and butter" letter to her chum as well as to the latter's mother. You may, if you wish, write to the mother thanking her for the hospitality extended to your daughter, stating also that her daughter just soon visit you. And then, sometime later, your daughter should write again to her chum and you to her mother, inviting the little girl to spend a few days at your home.

Question: At what age should a child be taught the proper manner of holding his spoon and fork and discouraged in the baby-fashion grip?—Mother.

Answer: As soon as his hands are capable he should be instructed in the proper manner of holding his silver. There is no age limit. The baby grip should be discouraged as early as possible.

NOT A CHANCE

Breakfast just happened to listen in on a newly engaged couple the other day.

"Wasn't it wonderful last night when you proposed?" asked the girl. "The moon was shining so bright and the feel of your strong arms about me. And below us the great ocean stretching out to the Orient?"

"Grand!" agreed the young man. "And your lips were so sweet, just as they are now," and he sampled them again.

"But there's one thing I've been wondering," went on the girl. "When you asked me to marry you, what would you have done if I had refused? Would you have started up the engine and driven us over the precipice, dashing us to death on the rocks below so you could have me in death if not in life?"

"Not quite," answered the young man. "I just had new tires put on that car."

There are still people who take checks from people they do not know. And there are still some people who do not take checks from people they do know.

In some places it has been found that those most able to pay their taxes do not pay them. Publicity is what brings them around.

Again there is talk in Washington about building the Lake Erie and Ohio ship canal. That talk was also on during the first world war, but no canal was built. Some birds always want to go back to the customs of the old days.

First Mosquito: "What are you so happy about?"

Second Mosquito: "I just passed my screen test."

We found this note in the listing of rural happenings in the weekly paper published in a Missouri town:

"The ladies of the church society enjoyed a swap social Saturday at the residence of Mrs. Seth Smith. Everybody brought something they didn't need. Many of the ladies were accompanied by their husbands."

All kinds of attempts seem being made in Washington to make people feel war minded. Some want to be war heroes without carrying a gun.

Hitler has stated he has no intention of attacking the United States, and Uncle Sam is going to spend many billions of dollars to help him keep his word.

Hitler is wearing a better uniform than he wore in the first world war.

The average husband gets a fair deal. If his wife tells friends his faults, she also tells acquaintances what a wonder he is.

"Gosh!" here comes a flier," said the traffic sergeant astride his motorbike alongside the high way "Guess I'd better hand him a ticket."

And off he flew.

"That was certainly a long chase, sergeant," remarked another motorcop when his superior returned an hour later. Anything unusual?"

"A bit out of the ordinary," replied the sergeant. "When I caught up with the car the fellow said his wife had threatened to go home to her mother."

"Yes, but why should that make him speed so fast?"

"He was taking her there before she changed her mind," explained the sergeant.

In some places many accused of drunken driving are acquitted by juries. Sort of a sympathetic feeling.

Maybe there were "good old days" But was human nature doing better in the pre-zipper era than now?

Human nature is at the bottom of nearly everything that goes wrong.

Men Are Not Drafted—They're Selected
Army Used No Kid Gloves On New Rookies
Recruits Represent Highest Type Of Men

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—To think of a young man as having been drafted into Uncle Sam's military service or to refer to him as a conscript almost verges on being a severely punishable offense these times.

The chap by no means is drafted. He's selected, which is a great compliment to him. It proves that he's physically and mentally a fine human specimen, he would not have passed examination by the selective service authorities. Having done so, he becomes a selectee. He ought to be proud of it.

Drafted? A conscript? Heavens, no. Those are unpleasant terms. They hint at compulsion. All sorts of pains were taken to dodge their employment, in the wording of the selective service law. Anyone who uses either one of them is due for a stern calling down from selective service headquarters. One of these headquarters' main ideas is to make the training tremendously popular. Oh, yes. It's all right, if you choose, to call a selectee a trainee instead.

When a boy has the good fortune to get by the board he initially appears before, he's questioned as to any peacetime craft he may happen to be skilled in, and if it's of a nature calculated to make him especially useful in some particular line of military activity, the board recommends him to the army folk accordingly. It's nicer for him to get into one of these specialists' branches than to serve as an ordinary buck private in the ranks, where he's likely to be directly shot at if he actually become involved in war.

The army people, however, don't invariably act on the original board's recommendation.

This can happen.

For instance, suppose a lad's a competent auto mechanic. The board indorses him as a machinist. He reports for duty. The hard-boiled army officer in charge examines his credentials. Then he says, "O. K. Come out and take a look at one of our tanks nearby. See if you can work it."

Now, a tank's operated very differently from an automobile. It hasn't the kind of engineering that an auto has. Except that they're both automotive, tanks and autos have precious little in common.

So the kid completely muffs his test.

"Such being the case," says the

The Great Game Of Politics

By FRANK R. KENT

(Copyright, 1941)
By The Baltimore Sun

A Presidential Mistake

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.

IT is to be regretted that Senator Wheeler should have used the language in opposing the President's lend-lease bill which so infuriated him. It was, of course, absurd to speak of the possibility that "every fourth American boy may be plowed under." With neither Mr. Wheeler's viewpoint nor his words has this column any sympathy whatever.

ON the contrary, the Roosevelt policy of all aid to the British seems the only enlightened and intelligent course for this country to pursue, not merely to save England but in our own selfish interests. If peace cannot come and the threat to our security be obviated that way, then those things cannot be achieved at all. Nevertheless, the extraordinary outburst of the President, in which he used his press conference to denounce Senator Wheeler as a dastard and to declare that his remarks were the most "rotten," "untruthful" and "unpatriotic" that had been made in a generation, was so violent and excited as to disturb his friends even more than it angered his foes.

MR. ROOSEVELT does neither the cause he advocates nor himself any good by such unrestrained denunciations. In the first place, Senator Wheeler is not unpatriotic. He is wrong, but he isn't a villain. In the second place, granting that he deserved reuke for what he had said, it would have been much more effective to have ridiculed Mr. Wheeler than to denounce him. It would have been easy for the President to have made him look silly, but to violently berate him did several undesirable things.

FIRST, it dignified Senator Wheeler, more firmly established him as leader of the opposition, gave him opportunity to repeat his charges that the bill means war and the President's purpose is to take us in. If it had not been for the savagery of Mr. Roosevelt's assault, Mr. Wheeler's remarks quickly would have been forgotten. Second, it exalts the President as not in control of his temper, and that is calculated to create apprehension about the character of his leadership. He can accomplish much more by not permitting exaggerated and absurd statements from the other side to throw him off balance.

IF ever a man needed to be cool, calm and free from passion, he does now. If the opposition can keep him irritated and upset, it will have scored a point. Loss of temper will lend force to the accusation that he is intolerant of opposition and criticism. Third, Mr. Roosevelt himself, and his aides have been anything but free from intemperate language and unjustified statements. Thus, Mr. Roosevelt's unbridled indignation when someone who disagrees with him makes outrageous and untrue allegations seems somewhat out of proportion.

INEVITABLY, it recalls remarks such as came from the President in the recent campaign when he greeted the announcement that Mr. Lewis W. Douglas and Mr. John W. Hanes opposed a third term with the comment that they cared more for dollars than for humanity. That has been justifiably insulting and unjustifiable—and he knew it. The Messrs. Douglas and Hanes did not retort by calling the President names. For one thing, Presidents are protected by their office against that kind of retaliation, which makes it seem like taking unfair advantage of themselves. For another, neither Mr. Douglas nor Mr. Hanes fights on that level and they could afford to ignore that kind of slur even from a President.

IN this connection, many people also will recall the torrents of vituperation and abuse which have been poured out by those close friends and aides of Mr. Roosevelt, the Messrs. Ickes and Jackson. And to descend to a lower stratum, there are those who remember many reckless denunciatory utterances of other White House mouthpieces, such as Senators Guffey and Pepper. It may be said that these Administration examples of linguistic intemperance did not occur during a national crisis or in connection with a foreign policy. But that does not seem an adequate reply.

We are not at war. There is yet room for debate. Freedom of expression is still permissible, and there is no reason for the President to fly off the handle because one of his opponents resorts to indefensible excesses in a speech.

THE fact is that the more restraint the President shows, the surer are his opponents to be weakened by their own excesses. It is ardently to be hoped that he will not let himself be provoked into another press-conference outburst of this kind, here at the beginning of Congressional consideration of this vital measure Mr. Roosevelt starts off the debate by calling the leader of the opposition a traitor, a dastard and a liar. That is poor strategy. That makes for bitterness and bad feeling. Men in public life do not forget words of this kind—particularly men of convictions.

PEACE PLEDGES

ONE of the possibilities now confronting the American people is whether or not we will be forced into the European war during this new year of 1941. The conviction is growing that we will be. In the last campaign both political parties adopted the proposal that our best interests lie in aiding Great Britain in every way possible short of war. But both presidential candidates promised that they would not lead the country into war.

The question now puzzling many people is just how far we can go with aid short of war, and when one of these acts of aid may not be regarded by the totalitarian powers as an act of war. They have already stated that if the proposal to seize German, allied and neutral shipping interned in this country, turning it over to Great Britain is carried out, they will regard this as an act of war.

Perhaps the greatest hope of our people in avoiding war comes from the pledges made by President Roosevelt in the campaign that he will keep the country out of war. In order to refresh our memories it may be well to reproduce a few of the paragraphs attributed to Mr. Roosevelt on the question of peace and war in the 1940 campaign. We have no right to believe he will disregard them:

"The first purpose of our foreign policy is to keep our country out of war."

"Your boys are not going to be sent into any foreign war."

"It is for peace I have labored and it is for peace I shall labor all the days of my life."

"There have been two thoughts uppermost in my mind—to preserve peace in our land and to make the forces of democracy work for the benefit of the common people of America."

AMERICA'S BUSY INVENTORS

Reports from Washington indicate that one of the headaches of the national defense program is the deluge of inventions that has descended upon officials of the Army, the Navy and the Air Force. It would be easy to throw all such schemes—many of them crackpot—into the bureaucratic wastebasket. But what's feared is that such disregard would mean the loss of valuable ideas.

As a matter of fact, officials say that many practicable plans for improved equipment have already been received, and that more are expected as time goes on.

It's an illustration of the ancient truth that necessity is the mother of invention. And one finds it easy to believe that, in the present emergency, the mechanical resourcefulness and ingenuity of the American people will be found contributing mightily to the modernized defensive prowess of the nation.

NATURE'S IRONY

Easy enough it is for nature in a whimsical mood to reverse the Miltonian adage that peace hath her victories no less renowned than war. Front-page position accorded to the United States liner Manhattan, grounded on a sand bar near Palm Beach, attests that. And the 199 passengers who boarded the vessel at New York for a tour to the West Coast now realize Longfellow was right in saying this same nature "takes away our playthings one by one."

What irony that this $10,000,000 vessel after thrice bringing American refugees home from European danger zones should in peaceful waters run slap upon a sand bar. Her passengers could scarcely believe that their cruise had come to an inglorious end. Safely brought to shore by Coast Guard cutters, they cogitated in a luxurious resort hotel on whether to accept rail transportation back to New York or be flown to Havana, there to take passage back on the liner President Garfield. In any event the cruise is over and the Manhattan, after she is towed off the bar, will go into drydock at New York.

No reimbursement of passage money can compensate for missed delights so long envisaged; no easy plan can be found to restore their routine way of life to the 199 who had carefully arranged for weeks of absence. To each his special problem. But in a war-torn world they all may be thankful it was maritime misadventure, not disaster, that was their portion.

SON OF THE WEST

"A lovable dust bowl tramp" who started life as Charlie Cottar of Garfield county, Oklahoma, and wound up as Kenya's most famous professional hunter, is dead in Africa. Cottar lived the life that is visioned by every boy when he reaches the age when it is time to run away from home.

He was in his seventies when he went down, fatally gored by a rhino. True to tradition he had sent a bullet to its mark before the beast horned him. The rhino fell on him as he emptied his gun into the monster. But the horn ripped an artery and he survived his last shot only half an hour.

What's What At A Glance

officer, "you're due for four preliminary months of regular rank-and-file training. By then maybe you'll have learned enough for a bit classier duty."

Why don't they assign that selectee to an auto in preference to a tank? That question, it's rather common talk that professional army men aren't entirely in sympathy with the home board's policy of representing military life as something perfectly heavenly. The professionals have their orders, to be sure, to treat selectees with all consideration. They carry out these instructions, too, in public. In herding a bunch of rookies into their coaches in railroad stations, with lots of civilian bystanders looking on and listening, officers are as polite as punch. The indutectes that's another name it's permissible to call 'em by have elegant accommodations also—Pullmans and all that sort of stuff.

But when they arrive at cantonments begins to be, "You're in the army now."

At least, so I hear from some of the professionals themselves.

No Coddling

The professionals unmistakably don't believe in coddling. They don't believe in it for the selectees' own good.

In essentials they're admirably provided for. They're fed on the fat of the land—better, many of them, than they probably were fed on where they came from. Delicacies are included—gumdrops, etc.

"How, though," queried a young shavetail professional I talked with the other day, "are we going to make soldiers out of selectees by handling 'em as softies until maybe, they're chucked into action, and have to shoot and be shot at?"

There's no implication that the trainees are deliberately hazed by the professional gang in cantonments, but it's extremely obvious that the regular fighters, down to top sergeants, anyway, are doing their best to toughen 'em up. They have to do it surreptitiously, however. They could be openly summary with drafted conscripts, but not with indutectes, trainees and selectees.

This scheme isn't new. America sold supplies to the English even when the Redcoats were fighting

Suspends Order On Milk Marketing In New York Area

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Secretary of Agriculture Wickard today suspended the federal order governing the marketing of milk in the New York area effective 11:59 p. m. EST., February 28.

The suspension followed finding by Wickard that the New York marketing agreement as now in effect "unreasonably discriminates between handlers and between producers selling milk to handlers" and is also discriminatory to producers in other areas, particularly the greater Boston marketing area.

Producers in the New York area in December rejected amendments to the milk marketing order as a result of this action the agriculture department planned to hold another ballot next week. A group of milk producers, however, obtained a federal court injunction restraining the department from conducting this referendum.

DANGEROUS PREJUDICE
One of the complications that attended the Dionne quintuplets' birth was jaundice. They began to show evidences of it when they were two or three days old and by the end of the fifth day they were pretty badly colored. On the tenth day there were still some traces of the jaundice left.

In the majority of cases there should be no worry on the part of the parents over this discoloration of the skin. However, there are circumstances under which one must consider jaundice as being very severe.

If the baby is born with jaundice, or if jaundice develops within the first few hours of life, then it is a dangerous sign. If the discoloration doesn't appear until about the second day—and then becomes deeper and deeper in color, this is the normal jaundice, but the doctor will be on the alert for a more dangerous disease. If the jaundice does not appear until the baby is two or three weeks old and then becomes deeper in color over a period of weeks, then the child's prognosis is bad.

There are two conditions which must be differentiated from the ordinary jaundice of the newborn child. The first, called Icterus Gravis, usually comes on earlier than the normal jaundice. Of course, it is more severe, too, and the baby is badly discolored. Frequently this form of the disease is fatal.

Among those that do get better, the effects of the jaundice sometimes becomes evident in later years. The intense staining of the brain in the jaundice seems to prevent certain areas of the brain from developing normally. The result is that often when a child is fortunate enough to weather an attack of Icterus Gravis, as he grows older it will be noticed that he is mentally retarded. In some ways this represents the greatest difficulty in the treatment of the disease. It is impossible to tell in the acute stage

If the child is likely to suffer from mental retardation.

There is a second type of jaundice in the newborn child which is also serious. Often mistaken for ordinary jaundice, it is due to a congenital deformity of the liver and bile passages.

The bile is formed in the liver and collected by a series of minute ducts. If these ducts are not present or if they are obstructed, the bile cannot pass into the digestive tract. Accumulating in the liver, it is absorbed into the blood stream, giving rise to the jaundice.

In contrast to Icterus Gravis, this jaundice comes on much later, frequently the child being two or three weeks old before it appears. Although not accompanied by anemia, it develops and continues to increase and no amount of treatment or blood transfusions will hinder its progress. Only one thing can be done for a child with this complaint. That is surgery.

NEW EXPRESS HIGHS SET
Holiday business of the New Castle branch of Railway Express Agency set high records, Manager J. W. Anderson reported today. He said the nation-wide air express service of the firm scored a 41.22 per cent increase in November over the same month of 1939.

The sulphur known to the ancients came from volcanic regions of the old world, which was one of the reasons it was referred to as "brimstone".

Farewell Reception For Local Man Transferred To Position At Warren, Pa.

They turned the tables on Clayton Bannan of the Bell Telephone company Friday night in the Eagles club. For many a long year Bannan has been the story teller around the Bell plant, he did the talking and the gang got the enjoyment out of it. Friday night it was different.

Mr. Bannan has been transferred to Warren, Pa., and promoted from the district storekeeper's position here to the position of right of way agent there. Just to even up the story telling of the past ten years the men of the Bell system, about 100 of them got themselves together on the third floor of the Eagles club Friday night and Bannan had to sit back and listen.

Austin Webb, who acted as master of ceremonies and pep song leader, told the gang what a swell fellow Bannan was and he didn't dare deny it. Then he asked F. D. McFeeters to make a presentation and Mac did, a medal which when properly used will smooth out the irascible customer. Later W. E. Bankenstein spoke and presented Mr. Bannan with a travelling bag fully equipped. Mr. Bannan expressed his appreciation.

Several reels of motion pictures, "Adventures in Strange Places", were shown and before the evening was over a Dutch lunch was served. Cards were the diversion for the balance of the evening.

It was a grand evening and Mr. Bannan didn't enjoy it much more than the rest of the telephone men did. And a mighty nice way to say goodbye to a fellow.

Melissa J. Mershimer to Florence E. Sankey, Shenango township, $1.
Dog license sales are up this year as compared with other years. One of the reasons is that County Treasurer Earl R. Wimer is taking the licenses to various parts of the county. Two days this week were spent in Ellwood City and 366 licenses were sold. A total as of Friday was 1354 licenses disposed of thus far, considerably more than January of previous years.

On Monday Mr. Wimer will be in New Wilmington where residents of the northern part of the county will have an opportunity of getting their dogs licensed without coming to the court house.

Clerks in the treasurer's office are back into a rush business again. Sometime in April a treasurer's sale will be held of properties which are delinquent in their 1935 school road or poor taxes. It means endless detail, preparing forms, checking tax returns and a hundred and one other things. Between now and sale time the office will be plenty busy.

Along about this time of year the lawyers have worked off the effects of overeating during the Christmas holidays, especially the younger lawyers, and the bar banquet begins to get some attention.

Usually the banquet is held on George Washington's birthday, February 22nd and while this date is now definite yet it probably will be selected. It is expected that Federal Judge Herbert F. Goodrich, former Dean of the law school of the University of Pennsylvania will be the speaker.

The bar banquet follows a routine form that through years of usage has become almost as standard as the rules of practice. Turkey is served, the lawyers do their own carving and serving and if you have ever been lucky enough to go to one of them you'll know its a meal to be remembered.

NEW CASTLE NEWS

OUT?—Very nice pose, young lady, but you're out! The scene is St. Pete, Fla., during a high school baseball game.

New Castle High Wins Loop Game At Beaver Falls

Score Is 22 To 14 In Section Three Battle At Valley Court Friday Night

ADAMO AND WALLS SCORING STARS

New Castle high basketball team staged a second half rally last night at Beaver Falls high floor to defeat Beaver Falls high, 22 to 14, in a section three battle.

Close guarding was the order of both teams. Only 12 field goals were registered, New Castle having eight and Beaver Falls four. The first period ended 5 to 2, with New Castle leading. Thomas and Christopher had the New Castle points. Shibene had two fouls for the valleyites.

New Castle Leads, 6 to 5

The end of the first half found the New Castle team ahead by the count of 6 to 5. New Castle was held scoreless from the field in the second period, their only point being a foul by Christopher. Scherer and Macioce had the Beaver Falls points, which amounted to three.

After the intermission New Castle looked a lot better, with Walls stepping out to ring up three field goals for six points, and Cooper flipping in a field goal for two points. New Castle led, 14 to 9, at the end of the third period. Beaver Falls counted four points on field goals by Weltner and Macioce.

Ambridge High Next

New Castle duplicated in the final period with eight more points, on field goals by Adamo and Cooper and a couple of fouls by Adamo. The fourth period was Beaver Falls best scoring period of the game, the Tigers getting five points on a field goal by Brown and fouls by Brown and Macioce.

In the foul-tossing department New Castle made six out of 10. Beaver Falls made six out of 13. New Castle will play at home next Tuesday, meeting Ambridge high in a section three contest, at Washington high court.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

With much of his former fire gone and his eyes not the optics of yesterday, Henry Armstrong last night demonstrated that they never come back when he lost by a TKO to Fritz Zivic, welterweight champion who took the title from Henry some months ago. There were some who believed that had Hammerin' Hank's eyes proved right he might come through to wage such a fight that he might capture back his crown but that belief was dissipated early in the battle. Oh well, Henry Armstrong who won three titles can leave the game knowing that he gave the fans the worth of their money every time he entered the ropes.

Bill Klem of the National League will be on the sidelines as chief of the league's umpires this year. J. K. Davis, attorney, a former Bucknell grider, died at Greensburg yesterday having been ill several months. He was also president of the Greensburg club of the Penn State association. Allegheny county caravan to provide feed for deer will wind their way into the Big Woods Sunday. They'll work in St. Marys, Johnstown and Emporium vicinities. #### W. & J. TONIGHT

(Special To The News)

BETHANY, W. Va., Jan. 18.—Westminster's touring Titans came here last night and left a 54 to 27 defeat on the Bethany College Bisons. The visitors led throughout the game.

Guard Charley, Ridl and Fox paced the Westminster attack with 23 of the points between them. Coach Grover Washabaugh used two complete teams, giving his regulars plenty of rest for the tough battle that awaits them tonight at the W. & J. floor.

Best for the Bethany team was Alexander with five field goals. The Titans defense was hard for the Bisons to crack when the regulars were in the game. Bethany did most of the tallying on the reserves.

CHANGE IN SCHEDULE

There has been a change in the House league card at the "Y" for next week, and the players are asked to take notice of the following games: Monday, Tifereth Israel vs. Celtics. Friday, Jewels vs. Globetrotters. Both games start at 7 o'clock. These two games will finish the first half of the league season.

Dean Recalled To Active Duty

Popular Local Middleweight Will Serve As Recruiting Officer Here

ASSUMES DUTIES STARTING TUESDAY

Sergeant John L. Dean, better known to the fight gentry as New Castle's Fighting Marine, has been recalled to active duty by the United States Marine Corps.

The popular fistic figure leaves Tuesday morning for Pittsburgh where he will officially assume duties as a recruiting officer. Sergeant Dean will be in charge of the New Castle sub-station to be opened sometime this month.

Dean's career as a marine dates back to March 9, 1934. He served on the U.S.S. Pennsylvania, in Honolulu, Shanghai, China, and throughout the Pacific Coast. He received an honorable discharge on March 9, 1939 and subsequently enlisted in the United States Corps Reserves for four years.

While serving for Uncle Sam, Dean took up boxing as a sideline. Shifty, clever and as tough as they come, Dean's reputation as a boxer was discussed in every port. He ranks as one of the toughest marines to ever crawl into the ring.

After leaving the marines, Dean fought professionally, exchanging blows with the classiest mitt slingers in the middleweight bracket. He participated in more than 100 battles. Billy Soose, the uncrowned king of the middleweights, fought and defeated Dean, but wanted no part of Dean thereafter.

Handsome and blessed with an appealing personality, Dean's friendship include a surprisingly large number of nationally known figures. E. E. (Swede) Larson, at one time Dean's superior officer and currently football coach at Navy, is a close friend. So is Lew Jenkins, who, like Dean, left the marines and skyrocketed to fistic fame.

Dean is married and the father of a son born several weeks ago. He resides at 15 1/2 North Mercer street.

GOPHERS TOUGH

IN BASKETBALL

Minnesota's athletic prowess extends to the basketball court.

The mighty Gophers won 18 consecutive basketball battles last year. A big goose-egg battered the lost column.

BOWLERS SHOULD LIKE THIS IDEA

And the latest for bowlers—a coin-operated bowling game. By dropping a coin in the box, center, bowlers can roll a game very similar to duckpins with the pins set automatically. Many bowling proprietors are installing the coin-operated games in auxiliary space for patron practice.

A lot of sport notes tossed together to make a column:

Grover Washabaugh, who guides the football and basketball destinies of Westminster college, is such a stickler for details that he requires every member of the Titan squad to shoot at least 100 fouls a day. The genial tutor believes the daily practice sharpens the players' aim. The undefeated Titans, one of the best in the land, swish nets with tough W. & J. tonight, incidentally.

By seconding Jeffrey Dime here on Monday night, George Chip will be breaking a promise he made three years ago. After winning the highest possible prize in the middleweight division, Chip lost the bauble and later decided to hang up the gauntlets. He vowed he'd never enter the ring again in any capacity other than possibly a referee or a judge. He has broken down, mainly, to aid the benefit show.

If it's true that practice makes perfect, then the Brooklyn Dodgers will be super-perfect. The Dodgers this spring will participate in 50 practice games—an all-time record! That "youth must be served" adage was booting around a bit. In 1940, 39-year-old Fred Fitzsimmons not only had the highest win and lost percentage among pitchers but also set a league record with an .889 mark.

The Cardinals recently declared dividends. Shareholders received $7 for each share they held. Kirby Higbe is probably the happiest player in the majors today. Being traded to a first division club by the Phillies is a break of the game.

FOURTEEN BALKS

IN A. A. LEAGUE

Fourteen balks were called in the American Association last year. Only pitcher to be charged with two was John Wilson of Indianapolis. One each were registered by VanderMeer of Indianapolis, Melton, Brechen and F. Barrett of Columbus; Flowers and Parmelee of Louisville; Hendrickson and Wey-sloff of Kansas City; Blaeholder of Milwaukee; Tauscher of Minneapolis; Kimberlin of Toledo and Taylor of St. Paul.

Jeffrey Dime, New Castle vs. Johnny Sandus, McKeesport, 175 pounds. It will be their first fight in this city.

Larry Retardo, Ellwood City vs. Bud Sullivan, Pittsburgh, 128 pounds. They are new faces here. Russell Baxter, New Castle vs. Nick Bofa, Pittsburgh, 150 pounds. It will be Bofa's first fight here. Lester Leasure, New Castle vs. Johnny Burns, McKeesport, 147 pounds. Burns is a newcomer. Billy Reale, Castlewood vs. Art Adams, Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh, 160 pounds. Adams is making his first debut here.

The foregoing are the performers. Some of them may become professional stars later in their career. The order in which they will enter the ring will be determined Monday night.

All the boxers in this section will end hard training today, do light exercise tomorrow, take a short walk Monday morning then rest until summoned to the ring at 8:30 p.m.

Each will be examined by the club's physician. After the Pennsylvania Athletic commission and Amateur Athletic union passes on their eligibility they'll be given the "go ahead" signal and the scraps will go on.

There are yet some reservations which may be had by calling the Jefferson A. C., at 9025.

BOB SUFFRIDGE

AWARDED TROPHY

(International News Service) ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 18.—Robert Suffridge, Tennessee's all-American guard, today was inscribed as the most valuable football player in the south by the Atlanta Touchdown club. Suffridge was presented a trophy last night at a banquet addressed by Coach Frank Leahy of Boston College, whose team defeated Tennessee in the Sugar Bowl.

What not to try on skis could be the lesson in this picture taken at Mount Tremblant, ski paradise high in the Canadian Laurentian mountains near Quebec. The Canadian down-hill champ, Viateur Cousineau, however, may come out of it with all parts still together.

Plan To Show Johnson Triplets At Boxing Show

Four Golden Glove Champs, Local Boxers On Monday Night Card

FIRST BOUT TO START AT 8:30 P. M.

Mr. and Mrs. Citizen: Have you ever had the pleasure of seeing triplets? No? Well, you've got that opportunity when you visit the Arena, at 8:30 p.m. Monday when the Jefferson Athletic club holds an eight amateur fight-bout docket for the benefit of Clara Mae, Gertrude Ann and Thomas Mathew Johnson, 2-years old of South New Castle Boro.

The Jefferson A. C. boxing committee has delegated Charlie Landolf of The News sports staff, who wrote the first story telling of their arrival into this world to take them there. The little tots were born in the New Castle hospital in November, 1939, placed in incubators and following some months stay, with their Mamma were taken to their South New Castle boro home.

They've thrived and are coming along, thank you, and inasmuch as Mr. and Mrs. Johnson need at least two of everything for little Clara Mae and Gertrude Ann and Thomas Mathew also needs some things, it was decided by the Jefferson A. C. that, when they staged another boxing show the triplets would receive 33 1/3 cents on every dollar profit, and that's Monday night.

So fans, if you've got a night of bowling roll those balls early and rush for The Arena. If you've planned on some other affair, say a card party, that occurs between the hours of 8:30 p.m. and 10 p.m., it might be possible that the party can be shifted to a boxing party at The Arena—that is, if you'd like to see those little mites of humanity—the only triplets the section has had.

Tommy Leach and Eddie Fritz who will have charge of the boxing action for the Jefferson A. C. have "ruled out" all "Annie Oakleys"—passes, in other words. Upon some occasions a few have been allowed to enter but Monday night, the free list will be "out."

G. G. Champions To Box

But the triplets will not be the only magnets. No, Siree, Bob. Four Golden Glove champions will be on display and the fans will also see how they earned their championships. Three of them captured their titles Thursday night in Youngstown and the fourth won his diadem when he participated in a recent tourney in McKeesport.

To add to the presentation of triplets and four Golden Glove champions Matchmaker Tom Leach has arranged a splendid card which includes some mighty good sockers (punch to the untainted) and boxers. There'll not be any dull moments and with the show to start at 8:30 p.m., there ought not to be a dull moment until all eight bouts are fought.

Here's the card: Sonny Horne, Niles. G. G. champion of Youngstown vs. Eddie By-num of Pittsburgh at 147 pounds. Both have shown to advantage here. Steve Ignath, Youngstown G. G. champion vs. Carl Grasta, McKeesport G. G. champion, heavyweights. They are new faces here.

Frank Corty, Youngstown G. G. champion vs. Kerry Kiger, Pittsburgh, at 118 pounds. They are new faces here.

Jeffrey Dime, New Castle vs. Johnny Sandus, McKeesport, 175 pounds. It will be their first fight in this city.

Larry Retardo, Ellwood City vs. Bud Sullivan, Pittsburgh, 128 pounds. They are new faces here. Russell Baxter, New Castle vs. Nick Bofa, Pittsburgh, 150 pounds. It will be Bofa's first fight here.

Lester Leasure, New Castle vs. Johnny Burns, McKeesport, 147 pounds. Burns is a newcomer. Billy Reale, Castlewood vs. Art Adams, Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh, 160 pounds. Adams is making his first debut here.

The foregoing are the performers. Some of them may become professional stars later in their career. The order in which they will enter the ring will be determined Monday night.

All the boxers in this section will end hard training today, do light exercise tomorrow, take a short walk Monday morning then rest until summoned to the ring at 8:30 p.m.

There are yet some reservations which may be had by calling the Jefferson A. C., at 9025.

Gersons-Greeks To Play Sunday

Old Furnace Five Meets Ohioans, Three Games On Arena Card For Sunday

There will be three fast basketball games at the Arena floor on Sunday, it was announced today.

In the first game at 2 o'clock the New Castle St. George Greeks team will battle the St. Johns Greek team from Youngstown. This should be a crackerjack of a game, as the locals have a fine team and are among the leaders in the New Castle church league here. Coach Manny Ohtites plans to start his strongest lineup in an effort to trip the clever Ohio opponents.

The second game will find the Gersons meeting the fast Ford City Clothiers at 3 o'clock. Coach Mike Kulich will have his best team available for the game. The Ford City team put up a fine game against the Polish Falcons here. The Gersons have not yet been defeated at the Arena floor.

In the third game the Old Furnace Five plays the Sigma Gamma club of Levisburg, O. In the Ohio lineup will be several former Warren Harding High and college stars. The Sigma Gamma team was the runner-up last year in the Warren tourney and semi-finalists in the Trumbull county tourney. The team is coached by Fred Hampson. John Rubels is coach of the Old Furnace Five.

W. & J. To Play Titans Tonight

Two Of Districts Leading Teams To Clash On Washington Floor

(Special To The News)

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 18.—The influenza epidemic which struck 125 students late last week and prompted a two-day layoff from school listed several members of the undefeated W. & J. basketball team among the victims.

Starters Al Reece and Wally Kettwell, along with reserves Patsy Falvo and Chuck Forejt, were in bed this week from the disease. The four of them were bedridden last Saturday, but turned out in uniform for the Carnegie Tech tilt, which the Presidents won, 51-39, for their seventh straight. Both Reece and Kettwell played most of the game.

Coach Adam Sanders said he might use John Duthie, sophomore forward, and Ted Skokos, junior guard, for starting replacements. Duthie is just recovering from the same illness himself.

On Saturday night W. & J. will take on the unbeaten Westminster Titans here at Wash. H. Last year the Sandersmen made a brilliant last-half rally to nose out the Titans, 58-57.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill.—A brilliant field of middle-western track athletes is assured by early interest in the 18th annual of the colorful University of Illinois indoor relay carnival, the largest indoor relay meet held in the United States, set for February 15.

Last year's entry list of 449 athletes representing 33 universities and colleges will at least be equalled and probably surpassed.

Referee Stops Fight To Save Armstrong From Punishment In Twelfth

By LAWTON CARVER

International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—One of the greatest fighters in the history of boxing looked down that lonesome trail from whence there is no returning today. Henry Armstrong incredibly is through after a last stand that seldom has been equaled for the gallantry of a man trying to punch his way out of bloodshed and physical wreckage in the prize ring.

Champions don't come back. Or, at least, this one didn't, unless it was to tarry a moment and catch the next out-going ambulance.

In trying to regain his welterweight championship last night, Armstrong was beaten so badly by Fritz Zivic, the champion, that the press was barred from his dressing room for a half hour and photographers were not permitted to take pictures of him sitting in a slump and answering questions in a croaking whisper.

But beaten as he was, and cut and bruised and groping through the fog in his brain and the curtain of blood that streamed down his

20 Lead; Grab Eighth
In Row, 32-20

New Wilmington High heads the Section 20 parade following a sparkling 32-20 victory over Shenango Township, Friday night on Shenango floor.

Once again led by their act, Paul Minner, the college players grabbed the lead and moved on to their eighth straight triumph of the season. By halftime, New Wilmington held a commanding 24-9 margin. Thereafter, the "Greyhounds" were satisfied to pile up eight more markers and call it a night.

Minner fattened his point average, ringing the bell for 14 points. Pearson followed with nine markers. For Shenango, O'Neill, Christie and Pitzer were outstanding. This marked the initial setback of the season for the East New Castle quintet.

In the preliminary game, the New Wilmington Reserves eked out a 19-16 victory over Shenango's seconds.

SHORT SPORTS

They'll never live it down department: When Greg Rice was captain of the 1939 Notre Dame track team, he went to some pains to awaken his teammates for mass the day of a meet at the University of Illinois. He got the entire team there, only to discover that Father John A. O'Brien, organizer of the Newman Foundation on the Illinois campus, had chosen that day to deliver a sermon on Rice's virtue as an athlete, gentleman, scholar and Christian.

Milwaukee—Because of a record number of entries, American Bowling Congress officials have extended the annual tournament at St. Paul another three days. The tournament will start March 13, last 54 days.

Temple's Ray Morrison believes the new football rules are okay. He points out that the coach instead of the player will be blamed for calling a bad one under the free substitution edict. . . . Little Moravian's athletic teams played 45 contests, won 37, lost eight and tied none last year.

DOERR UNDER KNIFE; SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

Bobby Doerr, classy second baseman for the Boston Red Sox, is getting along splendidly following an emergency appendectomy performed in Eugene, Oregon.

Doerr will be in condition for the impending spring training grind.

One Out Of Fourteen Persons In Hospital On Average, Yearly

Approximately 7,000 persons residing in Lawrence county will require hospitalization within the next 12 months, it is revealed in an announcement by the non-profit group hospitalization plan which has the co-operation and sponsorship of the Jameson Memorial and the New Castle City hospital.

Figures show that an average of one person out of 14 finds it necessary to undergo hospitalization each year. The total number of persons in the entire United States hospitalized in one year is about 10,000,000. This figure includes only bed patients and does not take into consideration the 15,000,000 dispensary or "out" patients. The information regarding the approximate extent to which hospitalization will be required by residents of Lawrence county has been derived through use of the latest official federal census which lists the population of the county in excess of 96,000.

The Hospital Service Association is the medium through which the hospitals extend their facilities to the public on the basis of a community project.

The plan has been highly recommended by economists as a convenient and practical method of providing for unpredictable hospital expenses.

Endocarditis, myocarditis and pericarditis.

Most medical terms ending in "itis" indicate inflammation. As pericarditis, tonsillitis, pleuritis, arthritis.

Endocarditis is an inflammation of tissue lining the heart cavity. Myocarditis is an inflammation of the muscular walls of the heart.

Pericarditis is an inflammation of the sac containing the heart. One out of every 100 children is said to have a rheumatic heart.
